

Call for Authors: Articles on Information Management

The Foundation, in collaboration with ARMA International, have agreed to publish articles in a joint issue of the Information Management Magazine which is peer-reviewed and devoted to research on topics related to information management.

In the first issue of the magazine, the Foundation is interested in receiving articles related to the theme of technological innovation such as artificial intelligence, blockchain, virtual reality, cloud, social media, etc., and their impact on Information Governance. The following are some possible related topics:

- Policy, principles and maturity models related to technological innovation
- Legal and regulatory requirements at the federal, state or local levels
- Security, privacy, business continuity and protection
- Information access and availability
- Retention and disposition
- Long-term preservation and digital stewardship

Articles are welcome from information management professionals, students, professors, researchers and practitioners. Submissions should be cited, and may include literature reviews, case studies, or other forms of original research.

Article Length: 2,000 – 2,500 words per article
Funding: US$1,000, paid upon final acceptance of article
Contract Term: 3 months from date of execution of signed contract
Copyright: Copyright will be retained jointly by the Foundation and ARMA International
